

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life,
says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weaknesses, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It costs but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

PRESIDENT IN A CLOUDBURST

Panic Caused in Crowd at Charlotte Watching Parade
Review—No One Seriously Hurt.

Charlotte, N. C., May 20.—A cloudburst broke over the city this afternoon and caused alarm in the dense crowd assembled in front of the stand from which President Taft was reviewing the Mecklenburg celebration parade. No one was seriously hurt.

In the midst of the excitement and the feeling through one of the big industrial fountains entangled with a live electric light wire. The wire sagged almost to the heads of the people beneath.

To add to the turmoil and danger, there was a loud report and a blinding flash not fifty yards from the reviewing stand. Just what caused the explosion is not known. The crowd scattered in all directions. Men and women alike rushed for the shelter of the president's stand, and the president stepped to one side to give as much room as possible.

The tremendous downpour of rain was soon beating its way through the canvas roof of the stand, and almost directly over the president's head a great pool of water gathered, threatening to break down the covering. In the emergency, some one brought a tall stepladder, a man rushed up and cutting a hole in the canvas let the water down in a perfect flood. This quick action prevented any further trouble than the partial drenching of the president.

After the first rush for cover the crowds were soon quieted. The electric power was cut off, and the excitement soon was over.

When quiet had been restored the president did not seem to mind the experience in the least. He stood smiling while the rain poured down. Thousands of men and women were drenched to the skin, and many pretty costumes worn by those in the parade and in the street were ruined.

The parade was near its conclusion when the cloudburst came. The president remained until the last bedraggled float went by and then, entering his carriage, was driven back to the Selwyn hotel for a change of clothes.

NOT AN UNPARDONABLE ERROR.

Military Title Led to Purser's Unfortunate Assignment of Berths.

"As I entered the stateroom assigned to me on one of the coastwise steamers on my last trip south, I was startled to find the lower berth littered with feminine apparel," said a commercial traveler. "I immediately sought out the purser of the boat and told him he must have made some mistake in allotting the rooms, as the persons he had put in mine was undoubtedly a woman, if I might judge by her belongings."

"Well! well!" he exclaimed, much excited. "There must be some mistake. Let's look at the passenger list."

"Examination of the list showed my name and that of 'Maj. White' as the occupants of the same room. The purser and I went to the stateroom, and there in the doorway stood a mild-eyed young woman. When the purser asked her if that was her room she glanced at him casually and replied that it was."

"But," objected the officer, "I have assigned this room to Maj. White. Have I the pleasure of speaking to his wife?"

"No, sir," was the prompt reply. "I am Maj. White—Maj. White of the Salvation Army."

BREAKING BAD NEWS GENTLY.

Matter of Relative Values As Understood in Holstein.

"In the province of Holstein," says a traveler who spends a good deal of his time abroad, "where, of course, nothing is more important than the breeding of superior cattle, the country people are not only very thrifty, but exceedingly fond of their cows, as may be gathered from a characteristic story current there."

"It appears that one farmer was walking sadly down the road one day when the village pastor met him."

"Why so downcast, friend?" asked the pastor.

"I have a sad errand, pastor," replied the farmer. "Farmer Henrik's cow is dead in my pasture, and I am on my way to tell him."

"A hard task, indeed."

"You may well say so, pastor; but I shall break it to him gently."

"And how will you do that?"

"Oh, I shall tell him first that it is his father who is dead; and then, having opened the way for sadder news still, I shall tell him that it is not his father, but the cow!"—Harper's Weekly.

There is Full Proof of This One.

"We have lots of curious 'last requests' from patients who are about to have operations performed," said a nurse in the women's surgical ward of one of the New York hospitals, "but I thought about the last word had been said on this subject one day last week when one of my patients, before going to the operating room, called me to her and asked me to write two postal cards to her husband, so that she might sign them before the operation. One was to read: 'My dear husband: The operation was at ten this morning and I am getting along fine!' The other one was: 'My dear husband: The operation was at ten this morning and I am sorry to say I died. From your loving wife.'"

The Puzzle Craze.

"One of the curious things about this revival of the puzzle craze," remarked the man who notices little things, "is the fact that I never have met a man or woman who plays with the cut-up pictures nowadays who knew them as a child. Whenever I have commented on the superior beauty and difficulty of the present-day puzzles over the ones I knew as a little boy the invariable response has been: 'It is curious, but I never saw any when I was a child.' I don't just know how my youthful social standing could have compared with theirs, but I do know the old-time picture puzzles were sold in the best shops in my city at that time."

The Unreal World of Comfort.

The more plain and satisfying our state appears, the more we may know that we are living in an unreal world. For the real world is not satisfying. The real world is full of bracing bewildering and brutal surprises. Comfort is the blessing and the curse of the English, and of Americans. With them it is a loud comfort, a wild comfort, a screaming and capering comfort; but comfort at bottom still. For there is but an inch of difference between the cushioned chamber and the padded cell.—Gilbert K. Chesterton.

Manuel Bareda, president of the National Bank of Mexico, the largest financial institution in that country, recently died in New York city. He came to the United States for a surgical operation, and his death at the age of 58 was a shock to his many friends in the City of Mexico.

REQUISITES FOR THE MINISTRY.

Pastor Must Carry Earth's Freshness to Do Effective Work.

A minister in those indoor days needs all the open air he can beg, borrow or buy. Consider a moment. Through the week his privilege will call him into close and curtained sick rooms—sick rooms of the soul, most of them; he can never go, to any good purpose, unless all the clear winds of heaven and health are buttoned freely under his coat. He shall have daily to move among persons whose skies are perpetually overcast and gray, whose irritabilities act upon their friends like a fine, drizzling rain in November; he must somewhere have observed more sunshine than will ripen a thousand strawberries, and an evenness of temper that earthquakes cannot shake. Time and again he will have to work with people whose outlook is narrow and their horizon short; he must somehow have gotten a vision of distance—of far prospects and wide adventures; he must have climbed a hill with a friend that challenges, he must have driven a canoe

Kayser silk gloves have become what they are through 25 years of experience.

We alone have the infinite skill which is required to perfect them.

It was Kayser who invented the patent tip—the tip that outwears the glove.

It was the Kayser fabric, the Kayser fit, that made silk gloves the summer gloves of the millions.

They are today, as always, the only silk gloves desired by women who know.

Golden Opportunity That Cassandra Overlooked.

Xanthippe, Cassandra, Queen Elizabeth and Dido were walking along the Styx one afternoon not long ago and the conversation between these eminent ladies turned upon prophecy. With the exception of Cassandra none of them seemed to "take much stock" in it.

"Tell me the honest truth now, Cassandra—could you really see into the future?" asked Dido with a skeptical smile at the prophetess.

"I could, honestly," said Cassandra earnestly.

"How far, Cassie?" queried Queen Elizabeth.

"All the far there was," said Cassandra.

"Humph," said Xanthippe. "Could you see as far ahead as—Rudyard Kipling?"

"Yes," said Cassandra. "I'd read all Kipling ten years before the fall of Troy."

"Then all I've got to say," said Xanthippe tartly, "is you were an awful fool not to copy the stuff down and publish it as your own."
